

Lately the garage door has been behaving differently depending on the time of day. Early morning it opens and heat vs garage door closes without hesitation, but by mid afternoon it starts stopping halfway and reversing. Nothing appears to block the track and the sensors look aligned. The change seemed to happen once the weather got hotter this week. Get more info The wall button and the remote both act the same so it does not seem limited to the transmitter.