

The door occasionally closes fully and then immediately reopens as if something passed underneath. The track is clear each time this happens.

It may work normally several times and then repeat the issue again later. The inconsistency makes it difficult garage door installation service to tell whether the problem is electrical or mechanical.