Before you go, it’s smart to check the office hours to prevent any delays. Most airline offices are open during regular business hours on weekdays and have reduced hours on weekends or public holidays.

Services Offered at the Office

Baggage Assistance and Policies

Understanding baggage rules is important, especially for international travel. The office provides detailed information about checked baggage allowances, cabin baggage limits, and extra luggage charges. If you plan to travel with sports equipment, musical instruments, or oversized items, the staff can explain the proper procedures and associated fees.

If your baggage is delayed or missing, the office can guide you through the reporting process and inform you about claim procedures. This support can be especially reassuring after long international journeys.
